

SFP News

April 2014

Has your Spring been as busy as ours? We imagine it has, so our update is short and to the point. We started the year committed to developing more resources to support groups that are starting or running improvement projects. Here are some of our most recent posts.

Videos: Introductions to SFP, FIPs and AIPs

FIP Resources: Criteria for a FIP (PDF)

Blog: FIPs We Can Believe In

And that's not all! We have much more information in the works, so keep checking our site and your email for more information on fisheries improvement.

While we're busy supporting the development of more FIPs, we continue to work with seafood companies to analyze and improve their supply chains. We recently announced a new partnership with the Spanish company Congalsa.

Along with moving industry forward, we look at how critical global issues like ocean acidification will affect seafood and the ocean environment. The Global Ocean Health program of SFP and the National Fisheries Conservation Center recently put out a comprehensive newsletter called the Ocean Acidification Report. We hope you will support their efforts.

Please reach us at info@sustainablefish.org, as well as on Twitter and Facebook if you have questions or feedback. We appreciate your input and support.

Jim Cannon

CEO, Sustainable Fisheries Partnership