May 2021

As the season warms up we welcome spring in many parts of the world, as we at SFP are currently working toward a vibrant future of sustainably and profitably.

With our world facing complex environmental and climate challenges, responsible seafood is a crucial component of our sustainability efforts.

Please share your support. I always enjoy hearing from you, and encourage you to send me any thoughts or questions you might have.

Sustainable Fishery Partnership
Greater Marine Office, WA

---

Giving up fish is not the best way to save the oceans

SFP CEO Jim Cramton's recent blog, blog at the role of individual consumer in helping to save the ocean and protect marine wildlife.

---

SFP partners commit to protect ocean wildlife

Two SFP partner companies recently announced new sourcing commitments that will help preserve the global marine environment. These companies have committed to sourcing 100% of its canned tuna from certified sustainable fisheries.

---

Ropeless gear can protect North Atlantic right whales

Learn more about this important issue and how you can support efforts to protect these majestic creatures.

---

Updated FIP Database will support better fisheries management

SFP and the Mountain Lab at the University of Washington released a new and improved version of their Tracing Improvement Program (FIP) in February. The updated database includes data on all SFP-managed FIPs to be more easily and effectively managed.

---

Seafood from illegal, unreported, and unregulated fishing fishing into the US

A new report by the International Trade Commission (ITC) on illegal, unreported, and unregulated (IUU) fishing found that an estimated 20% of the fish consumed in the US is from IUU fishing. This is a significant reduction compared to previous years.

---

Ocean Disclosure Project welcomes new participants

Two new companies have joined the Ocean Disclosure Project (ODP) for seafood sourcing. Two new companies, including GreenBlue and Ocean Outcomes, are now participating in this project.

---

SFP's new Twitter handle

SFP's Twitter handle has changed - now we are Tweeting at SustainableFris and no longer at SustainableFris. Please make sure you're following us for the latest news and updates.

---

Connect with Us

Facebook
Twitter
LinkedIn
Quote of the Week
"Sustainable fisheries are not only kinder to the environment, but also to our health and our communities."