

SFP News

October 2013

This is the Fall 2013 edition of SFP News. We're still celebrating the announcement of MSC certification of the Russian pollock fishery which was one of the earliest SFP Fishery Improvement Projects \(FIPs\).

And there are lots of other good news stories about fisheries getting better. You can read about some of our FIPs through case studies and blogs as well as follow progress via the regularly updated FIP profiles.

There's new material on our website, including our take on salmon hatcheries and the launch of an exciting industry initiative called Seapact. And the SFP film is now becoming available in languages other than English. Here's the Spanish version.

Don't forget to check out fisheries on FishSource - you can view the Russian pollock profile here.

Please get in touch if you want to find out more about SFP - we're easy to contact at info@sustainablefish.org as well as on Twitter and Facebook.

Best regards,

Jim Cannon

CEO, Sustainable Fisheries Partnership